Pictura will review all submissions and contact you if we are interested in your artwork. If you are not contacted, it only means that your artwork does not fit into what we are doing currently. However, Pictura is always evolving and growing and may find a place for your work in the future. We will keep your information on file and contact you if at any point we feel that your artwork lends itself to our current production.

Thank you for your interest in Pictura, and we look forward to viewing your work.
